INTRODUCTION.

The following pages, relating to the surname Cutler, are the result of researches and compilations made by the late Rev. Abner Morse, who died before this, the latest of his genealogical works had been published, although at the date of his death in May, 1865, several signatures had passed through the press.

In volume XIX. of the Genealogical Register, published in Boston, Mass., pages 371–2, will be found a detailed notice of Mr. Morse and his progenitors.

He was the son of Abner and Mille (Leland) Morse, of Medway, Mass., born 5 September, 1793, graduated Brown University, 1816, Andover Theological Seminary, 1819. He died suddenly at Sharon, Mass., 16 May, 1865, aged 71. He was twice married, and had three children. Two sons by his second wife survived him.

He had published several detached volumes relating to genealogies, and the present imprint was to have been included in a volume containing the genealogies of the families of Harding and Payson, styled volume fourth of "A Genealogical Register of the Descendants of Several Ancient Puritans."

As before stated, a few pages of the Cutler Genealogy had been struck off when Mr. Morse's sudden death caused the work to be suspended. Had he lived, it was his intention to have taken great pains in correcting errors and in making additions, by referring copies of the proofs to those from whom he had collected data. But no one appeared to superintend the editing of the work; and as it seemed wrong that the result of so much labor should be lost, Mr. Henry R. Danforth, so well known as the careful supervisor of many a genealogical publication, at the suggestion of that Antiquary of Antiquaries, Mr. Samuel G. Drake, has undertaken to print the manuscript exactly as it was left by Mr. Morse.

With all its errors and imperfections, and they are very many, the work can but prove of great value to future inquirers; nor can we close this brief introduction without a tribute to the patient faithfulness of the Compiler, and to his true estimate of the character and value of genealogical researches. This is especially shown in his prefatory remarks, where he exhibits the absurdity of one of those unsupported traditions relating to titled ancestry, as connected with the immediate emigrants to New England.

CUTLER.

Cutler, spelt in Rotuli Hundorum Le Coteler and Le Cotiler, is derived from the French Coutelier, a knife-maker; and as it was borrowed from a trade, that prolific source of surnames, it is presumed that many of the same craft in the 12th and 13th centuries assumed it. This will explain why it is so common, like Carpenter, Cooper, Taylor, Miller, Sawyer, Mason, Smith, &c., and has no geographical centre or national limitation. In Scotland it is Cutlar; in France Coutelier; but in Canada the French orthography has yielded to the English. In U. S. several families, bringing names in foreign languages of the same signification, have translated them and now wear the name of Cutler, so that without a genealogy it no longer suggests a Puritan origin or the slightest degree of relationship. Still, the great body of the Cutlers of New England, North Carolina and Nova Scotia, are sprung from three of the name who came to this country, 1635–7.

One of these, and probably all, were from Sprowston, now Sprauston, two miles N. of Norwich, Norfolk Co., England, and relatives; for tradition, intercourse between their children, and peculiar family resemblances among the aged 60 years ago, and occasionally still seen in the descendants of the different immigrants, assure me that they were of one stock, and probably brothers, traceable perhaps from one of four ancient noblemen who flourished in the conterminous Co. of Suffolk, where, and in Norfolk, the name has continued prominent and respectable. But the tradition, extensively circulated within the last 45 years, that the New England Cutlers are descended from Sir Admiral Gervase Cutler, is as preposterous a myth as ever gained currency. Sir Gervase, according to Lyson's Magna Britannia, m. Elizabeth, dau. and eventually sole heiress of Sir John Bentley who d. 1622. This was probably his first wife by whom, if he had issue, they must have been much younger than the immigrants to New England. Sir Gervase of Stainborough, Yorkshire, no doubt the same man and a descendant of Sir John of the same manor, knighted in the reign of Henry VI., was the son of Tho. Cutler, who was buried at Silkton, Jan. 21, 1622. He m. according to Collins' Peerage of England, (probably for a 2d wife) Magdalen, the 9th dau. of Sir John Egerton, Duke of Bridgewater, whose mother d. 1635, aged 52; so that the dau. must have been born as late as about 1625–7, when her husband, according to the tradition, must have had 3 or 4 sons, between 20 and 30 years older than herself, and one grandson born in 1625. Sir Admiral Gervase was killed in 1645, in defence of the Castle of Pontifiact, young enough to have been in the service. Now, if we suppose him to have been 45, that is, 20 years the senior of his 2d wife, which is improbable, he could have been only about 6 years older than two of the immigrants, and not as old as the other. But if Magdalen was his first wife, and Elizabeth his second, the incredibility of the tradition is increased; nor is there relief in supposing another Sir Gervase of a prior generation also an admiral, for none of the voluminous and hopeful works consulted, refer to any such man, as they would do if he had ever existed.

Sir Gervase must have possessed hereditable estates. Now if the immigrants were his sons, how came it to pass that in selecting names for 10 grandsons no one had filial reverence, family pride or foresight enough to call one Gervase; thereby honoring his father and indicating his own noble birth, and the possibility that one of his race might be installed lord of the manor at Stainburgh? The tradition refutes itself. It removes Sir Gervase hundreds of miles from the ancient seat of his noble family, and locates him at Yarmouth in 1630, and then from that seaport starts his sons for New England where they did not arrive until 5 years later. That the immigrants embarked at Yarmouth is highly probable, it being in the same Co., and near to Sprowston, their previous residence. Hence, if the pretended explorer [see Ch. IV., No. 170] found Y. to have been the place of their embarkation, he, or another for him, must bring Sir Gervase down there to one of the most isolated ports in the kingdom to make it more certain that he was their veritable father, and that they there left a palace for the wilds of America. What a sacrifice! And what a pity Cotton Mather had not known it that he might have given us another Chapter of Remarkables. If any such men had early planted in New England, their names would occur with a prefix of respect, which is never the case; and they would have been noticed by Cushing, Mather, Johnson and others. "There was nothing in the position or character of the first settlers of the name to indicate that they were of noble blood," says Rev. Curtis Cutler of Lexington, who thoroughly explored before me the cisatlantic history of Robert and James, and traced most of the descendants of the latter as published in the first half of Chapter IV.

But as the custodian of a certain MS. persistently alleges that it contains proof of the noble origin of our Cutlers, does not find it convenient to loan or transcribe it for my examination, but courteously informs me, as he has many others, that John Cutler of Lexington and Robert of Charlestown were brothers, and the "traced" sons of Sir Gervase, (on the verity of which statement Cutler Charts have been compiled and put into circulation) I pronounce it either misread or a forgery; for John senior of Lexington born 1663, was the son of James of Watertown, by his third marriage, inherited his father's homestead in Lexington, and was about 60 years the junior of Robert. But of what use is time and paper spent upon such a subject, except to warn others against credulity and falsehood, and save our genealogies from confusion. The ancestors of the New England Cutlers were noble Puritans, one an honored and principal citizen in a large and select community; another ranked with the first class of citizens in the Colony; and none of them in need of a noble lineage to perform their glorious mission and command the reverence and gratitude of every descendant worthy of the name. Still, their right by courtesy to bear arms may yet be discovered in the records of Norfolk and Suffolk; but, until this is done, there is no place in this article for any particular arms of our Cutlers.

One of the following list, however, is probably theirs, which Horatio G. Somerby, Esq., addressed to the care of J. S. Morgan & Co., No. 22 Old Broad street, London, may, for $100, be able to ascertain and communicate to any correspondent.

NAMES OF CUTLERS, WHOSE DESCENDANTS ARE TRACED IN THE FOLLOWING PAGES, VIZ.:

I. John Cutler, originally Johannes De Mesmaker of Hingham, Mass., and Boston. See Chapt. I.

II. John Cutler, sen., of Hingham, Mass. See Chapt. II.

III. Robert Cutler of Charlestown, Mass. See Chapt. III.

IV. James Cutler of Watertown, Cambridge and Lexington, Mass. See Chapt. IV.

V. Nathaniel Cutler of Middletown, Ct., died June 5, 1706, in his 100th year, without children recorded to him. Considering that he must have been born shortly after Robert of Charlestown, and probably 8 or 10 years after John, sen., of Hingham, each of whom named a son Nathaniel, he was not improbably their brother. Besides, John, sen., had a son die at the age of 94. James died, aged 88, one of his daughters, aged "91," and Capt. Ephraim Cutler, probably the nephew of Robert, and perhaps the son of this Nathaniel, was old enough to have a command in Philip's war, 1676–7, and able to subscribe his name in 1752. Such longevity indicates a common stock.

CHAPT. I.

P. 3. 1. John Cutler,[1] chirurgeon, originally from Holland, appears first upon our records at Hingham, in 1674, as Johannes De Mesmaker. When he arrived in New England, and where he debarked, is unknown; but circumstances show that at this time he had established his character as a gentleman and practitioner under the name of De Mesmaker, and secured the confidence and esteem of one of the most respectable families in Boston. Jan. 4, 1674–5, he adopted the translation of his name, and as John Cutler m. Mary Cowell, dau. of Edward C. of Boston, and sister of Capt. Wm. C. of the Narraganset war, whose step mother was Sarah Hobart, from Hingham, m. June, 1668. Subsequent to his marriage his name was entered at H. as "Johannes De Mesmaker, which," adds the record, "they say in English is John Cutler;" but the change was not completely effected on the records during 4 years, some of his children being entered as born De Mesmakers and baptized as Cutlers. In 1676–7 he served as chirurgeon in Philip's war, and drew pay so much larger in amount than the commanders of companies as to suggest that he held the office of chief surgeon.

About 1694 he removed to Boston, built a splendid house, for the time, on the E. side of what was first named Marlboro' st., now Washington st., upon lot No. 164, at present occupied by Chipman, Fowle & Co., carpet dealers. This house, according to tradition, was of wood, 3 stories high, and the tapestry of its rooms was composed of leather. It stood upon a lot extending in the rear to Hawley st., and became a centre of the wealthy, elite and dignified, down to the present century. Dr. Cutler died intestate, and his wid. Mary, acting as administratrix, Feb. 17, 1717, made oath to an inventory of his estate, amounting to £5,740.15.0. Among the articles enumerated were 662 oz. of silver plate, appraised at £331, gold buttons at £10.10s., 1 doz. silver-handled knives and forks, at £5, a negro Hannah at £36, a negro Kate at £25, the mansion on Marlboro' st. at £1000, a place in Summer st., formerly Daniel Moxey's, at £300, half a house and lot on Newbury st., formerly Edward Cowel's, at £800; and outstanding debts at £2790. She was appointed, April 24, 1718, guardian to her dau. Abigail, aged about 17 yrs., and died about one year afterwards, when her sons John and Peter, May 9, 1719, were appointed to complete her administration on their father's estate; and John to be guardian to his sister Abigail. One day previous, the heirs signed an agreement to divide their mother's estate, allowing one grd. dau. Mary Haywood to have an equal share with the other heirs in her plate. April 11, 1720, the heirs, 7 in No., agreed to a division of their father's estate. John had the mansion in Marlboro' st., Peter a dwelling, land and wharf at the N. End, near Charlestown Ferry, Hannah a house in Summer st., David, Ruth and Abigail, together, the "houses" on Newbury st., which they divided June 4, 1725, and Mary gave a quitclaim of her share to John for £295. Dr. Cutler had—

9. 2. I. John,[2] b. Aug. 6, 1676, at Hingham, d. Sept., 1761, m. Joanna (Dodd) Richards.

10. 3. II. Peter,[2] b. July 7, 1679, a De Mesmaker, bap. July, 1679, a Cutler.

4. III. Mary,[2] b. July 24, 1682, m. April 24, 1715, Capt. John Braudick of Long Island. Had issue.

5. IV. Hannah,[2] b. June 4, 1685, m. Anthony Haywood, Jr., who d. 1714, a mariner. Had Mary, prob. posthumous, who, with her mother, d.(?) prior to 1760, s. p.(?)

v. Abigail,[2] b. Nov. 1, 1687, d. May 31, 1688, at Hingham.
15. 6. vi. David,[2] b. Nov. 1, 1689, at H., d. 1730, m. Ann Millar.
18. 7. vii. Ruth,[2] b. Feb. 22, 1691–2, at H., m. June 2, 1715, Dr. George Stewart of Boston.
viii. Eliza,[2] b. Sept. 7, 1695, at Boston, died young.
8. ix. Abigail,[2] 2d, b. May 30, 1699, at Boston, m. June 4, 1725, Jacob "Cailloway," a merchant of Great Britain, r. London. Had
1. Mary,[3] who m. ——— Racket.

2. 9. John,[2] M. D., is supposed to have been sent to Europe for his education, and to have returned with high views of social relations, warm attachments to the Episcopal Church, and master of the Dutch language, and to have been followed by numbers from Holland, who were induced to unite with the Church he had chosen, and in which, 1721–2, he served as warden. He inherited the practice and house of his father, having, for his neighbors, John Philips, stationer, on the N., and Dr. Edward Ellis on the S. Here imagination sees him welcoming President Cutler, Tutor Brown & Co. on their way to England for orders and honors, as he must have done Gov. Gurdon Saltonstall, Benj. Faneuil, Esq., Rev. Isaac Brown, Francis Johonnot, &c.

Sept. 7, 1714, he was appointed to administer on the estate of Anthony Haywood, the husband of his sister Hannah; and, Jan. 1, and Dec. 25, 1721, he published in the Boston News Letter notice of his appointment as administrator on the estate of his late brother Peter. July 10, 1739, he, with Drs. Wm. Douglas, Wm. Clark and Edward Ellis, certified to the health of a cargo of negroes. Oct. 9, 1718, he was appointed associate guardian, with his wife, to his two stepdaughters, Mary and Joanna Richards. At the age of 40, Aug. 21, 1716, he m. Mrs. Joanna (Dodd) Richards, an affluent widow of 31 years, with 2 daughters. She was the sister of Mr. Edward D. of Hartford, and the widow of Capt. Tho. Richards of Boston, the legatee of Hon. John R. of Boston, and the son of Hon. James R. of Hartford, and the brother of Mrs. Gov. Saltonstall of New London, and nephew of Mrs. Gov. Hinkley of Plymouth. By her he had no issue. She d. aged 73, and was buried at King's Chapel, May 2, 1758. One of her daughters was m. Aug. 23, 1720, by Samuel Miles, Rector of King's Chapel, to Wm. Brooker of Boston, but from the silence of Dr. Cutler, in his will, and in the settlement of her estate, on which he administered, it is evident that she left no posterity, a misfortune remarkably common to the affluent. What dispositions were made of her large estates in Conn., Boston and England, has not been discovered. When the wills of Suff. Co. are arranged and made available, as in other Counties, it may be ascertained. Dr. John[2] seems to have adopted first his nephew John Cutler, son of Peter, who d. um., and 2d, John Cutler, the son of his brother David C., who took care of him in old age. He d. aged 85, and was interred at King's Chapel, Sept. 28, 1761. He made his will Aug. 16, 1760, giving all the silk wearing apparel of his late wife, Joanna, to the daus. of her brother, Mr. Dodd of Hartford, Ct.; to his nephew, John Cutler of Boston, all his apparel; to his niece, Elizabeth Brown, wife of Rev. Isaac B. of Newark, his case of silver handled knives and forks, with the spoons in it; to his friend, Capt. Tho. Geary of Marblehead, and wife, a pair of gloves, and a ring to him of the value of a guinea; to Mr. David Colson, and each of his own executors, a ring of the same value; to Elizabeth Peterson a bed, with blankets &c., table, looking glass, 6 chairs with carved tops, and great chair, 6 pewter plates and 2 do. dishes, £6 lawful money, and a suit of mourning; to Eunice Perin, £10. Of the remainder of his estate, he bequeathed ¼ to his nephew, John Cutler; ¼ to Mary Racket, dau. of his sister, Abigail "Colliwell" of London; ½ to the children of his deceased brothers.

David and Peter Cutler, and the children of his deceased sisters, Ruth Stewart and Mary Braudrick; each of whom should have an equal share of the one half, except John Stewart, to whom he gave 5s. James Boutineau, Esq., and John Cutler, Ex'rs.; Ezek. Goldthwait, Tho. Fayerweather, James Hughes, witnesses. Will proved, Oct. 2, 1761.

3. 10. Peter[2] grad. at Har. College, 1698, and, as evidence of the rank of his father, his name on the Triennial Catalogue, in a class of 15, had the 6th place, the sons of Symms, Cotton, Mather, Willard, Dudley Bradstreet, being placed above it, as possessed of higher family dignity. After his graduation he, as Doctor of the ship Swallow, made a voyage to Trieste, by the way of Antigua, Jamaica, Champeachy and Holland, and March 20 and June 3, 1701, was a witness in a suit between the master of the vessel and an employee. He settled in Boston, as a "shopkeeper," or merchant, and died on an island in Boston harbor, in 1720; for, his brother, Dr. John, Jan. 1, 1721, published in the Boston News Letter notice of his appointment as administrator on his estate. He left in Boston £1,350 in real estate, exclusive of goods, and his interest in common with his brother John in an improved farm at Rutland, which they received as heirs of their father John, sen., who probably derived it by a grant from the General Court for his services in the Narraganset war. He left a brick house in Cornhill, appraised by Geo. Stewart, David Colson and Wm. Down, at £650, and land and wharf at the North end at £350, and his estate owed Hon. Jona. Belcher £116, Gov. Saml. Shute £150, and smaller sums to Andrew Faneuil, and Messrs. Craddock, Waldo, (the purchaser of his house,) and Shief. At his funeral 9 gold rings, at a cost of £10.7s. were distributed. He m. Ruth ———, who d. before him, leaving "3 small children," who, before his death, had been taken care of by Mrs. Elizabeth McCarty, with whom the three daughters continued until 1722, and perhaps until 1724, but John and Peter boarded with John Holmes. Had—

22. 11. i. John,[3] who had attended school, 1722–4, died um. 1743.
23. 12. ii. Elizabeth,[3] alias Betty, b. Oct. 22, 1707, m. Rev. Isaac Brown.
31. 13. iii. Mary,[3] b. Dec. 20, 1708, d. Oct. 1777, m. Benj. Faneuil, Esq.
14. iv. Peter,[3] who lived with John Holmes, 1722–4, was alive, Jan. 16, 1748.
v. Katharine,[3] the youngest, died young, after 1722.

The marriage and death of their mother Ruth ——— are no where to be found on records in Massachusetts, and no evidence exists of any relationship existing between her and those who first had the care of her children. Might she not have been the daughter of a Huguenot of New Rochelle, and were not her daughters sent and committed to the care of a maternal aunt at that place, where one of them found a husband in the Rev. Mr. Brown, rector on the S. side of E. river, and the other in the courtly and affluent Benj. Faneuil? They had, in Boston, 3 and probably 4 paternal aunts, and 2 married uncles, one of whom was without issue at the time they were sent to New York. Their uncle John, who bequeathed to them, it may be noticed, made James Boutineau one of his executors; and their cousin Mary Stewart m. Francis Johonnot, both Frenchmen. Some will may yet be discovered to settle the question of their mother's family.

6. 15. David[2] settled in Boston, as a mariner, and lost all his real estate, and d. probably abroad, intestate, 1730. He m. Ann Millar(?) who, Oct. 8, 1730, was appointed administratrix on his estate, and presented an inventory of his personal property, valued at £77.11, of which she was allowed, for herself and two small children, £35. Geo. Campbell, Tho. Wroe and John Marshall, were commissioners to examine claims against the estate, which owed £349.18.2. She d. his widow, and Feb. 19, 1777, was buried at Trinity Church, aged 80. Had—

16. I. "Ann," alias "Nancy," b. 1718, bap. at King's Chapel, Nov. 8, 1723, and Sept. 27, 1810, was interred at Trin. Ch., um., aged 92.

35. 17. II. John, bap. at ditto, Aug. 22, 1725, d. Oct. 31, 1805, aged 82.

III. Mary, bap. at ditto, Feb. 19, 1726–7, died before 1730.

7. 18. Ruth,[2] m. June 2, 1715, for a 2d wife, Dr. George Stewart of Boston, treasurer of the Episcopal Charitable Society, April 1, 1731. Had—

19. I. John,[3] bap. at King's Chapel, June 10, 1716, m. Oct. 12, 1738, Mary Viscount, or another John S. did so; and he, March 13, 1738–9, m. at King's Chapel, Mary Lee, and is no further reported as of Boston, but was living in 1760.

20. II. James,[3] bap. at ditto, July 4, 1717, m.(?) Mehetabel Nichols of Wilmington, Feb. 4, 1768.

45. 21. III. Mary,[3] bap. at ditto, Dec. 25, 1724, m. Francis Johonnot.

11. 22. John,[3] after the death of his father Peter, was probably adopted by his uncle John,[2] who must, by this time, have despaired of issue. On going to sea, Dec. 16, 1741, um., he made his will, giving all his estate to his uncle John, and making him sole executor. His will was proved Aug. 19, 1743.

12. 23. Elizabeth,[3] m. Rev. Isaac Brown, then of Brook Haven, Long Island. Mr. B., of whose parentage nothing has been ascertained, grad. at Yale Col., 1729, received Episcopal ordination, preached on Long Island, 1733–45, and at Newark, N. J., 1745–76, when, as he said of himself, "my only crime was that I was a clergyman of the Church of England, and of course attached to the government and the constitution of Church and State," he was compelled to flee "precipitately" to New York, laving all his goods and estate behind. These were confiscated, and from the sale of them the commissioners of New Jersey, 1779, acknowledged the receipt of £663.10.2½. "Mr. Brown was accounted a man of talents and education," and is supposed(?) while residing at Newark, to have served, ab. 1758, as a tutor in Columbia Col., after its establishment in New York, in 1754. From the reports of the Miss. Soc. it appears that in 1774 he had been their missionary 40 years. In 1780 he and his wife, the subject of delirium, from the trials and troubles of a tempestuous voyage of 4 weeks, reached Annapolis, N. S. On their passage they lost most of the little property which their friends at Newark had saved for them. Mr. Brown wrote from A. the same year, that there was little hope of the recovery of his wife. He survived at A. "in much affliction and poverty, until 1787." From 1745 to 1776 he had children in charge of Trinity Church, Newark, and from the kind and careful hand of that indefatigable antiquarian and genealogist, S. H. Conger, Esq., of Newark, I have ascertained that he had—

24. I. Peter,[4] Dr., m. ——— Crane, dau. of Elijah C. of Newark, sympathized with his father, became a surgeon in the British army, administered relief to American prisoners in New York, had his est. in New Jersey confiscated, and £901.1.3 was credited, 1779, by the commissioners of the State as the balance received from the sale of his property. He had no children recorded to him, and he is supposed to have removed to Nova Scotia.

25. II. Jacob,[4] grad. at N. J. Col., 1750, d. 1788, was a royalist, and had his estate of £30.1.4 confiscated and acknowledged in the same list.

26. III. Daniel Isaac,[4] grad. 1753, at N. J. Col. established first at N. 1748.

27. IV. Wm.,[4] d. Aug. 9, 1763, aged 20 yrs. 7 mos. "son of Rev. Isaac and Elizabeth Brown."

V. Henry,[4] d. June 29, 1752, aged 2 yrs. 6 mo. 15 d., son of ditto. G. S.

28. VI. Mary,[4] who d. March 15, 1772, aged 26, wife of Isaac Ogden, Esq., clerk of Sup. Court of New Jersey, prior to 1776, who joined the British in New York, and after the war went to England, settled in Canada, was appointed a Judge of the Sup. Court, and so continued through life. On her monument in Newark is this inscription: "Could the softness and elegance which adorn; could the piety and benevolence which endear human nature, could tenderest friendship or purest love disarm the king of terrors, she had not died.

When ev'ry Pain and ev'ry Joy is o're,
When Fortune, aye Disease, can wound no more,
Virtues like hers with radiant Lusture glow;
And break refulgent thro' the Clouds of Woe!
Kind spirits sooth the Pangs of parting Breath,
And strew with Down the Bed of Death."

She had—

29. 1. Mary,[5] who was living at Three Rivers, Can. E., ab. 1846, um.

13. 31. Mary,[3] for whose outfit to Long Island, with her sister Elizabeth, £3.1s. were allowed, Nov. 15, 1722, seems not to have gone until sundry other charges for clothing were made, which were allowed in 1724, m. Benj. Faneuil, b. at New Rochelle, Dec. 29, 1701, son of Benj. and Ann (Bureau) F. and brother of Peter F., Esq., of Boston, to whose princely estate he and his sisters succeeded, 1742. He settled in Boston as a merchant, built his mansion in Brighton, and occupied it until 1785. Jan. 16, 1748, he and his wife united with her uncle Dr. John,[2] "heir of Doct. John, deceased," and attorney for Isaac and Elizabeth (Cutler) Brown, and their brother Peter Cutler, the children and heirs of Peter,[2] deceased, in the sale, for £500, O. T., to John Lamond, of a farm of 90 acres, in Rutland, "laid out to the right of their father." Madam Faneuil died 1777, and her husband, Oct. 1785. 17. 35. John,[3] in consequence of the misfortunes and death of his father, was, at the age of 5, left destitute; yet his education was not neglected, and he learned the trade of a brass-founder. At the age of about 20 he lost his cousin John Cutler, and was adopted in his stead by his uncle Dr. John,[2] and a shop was erected for him in the rear of the ancient homestead on Marlboro' street, opening upon Hawley street. Here he conducted business during his days of active life, and was ever in good circumstances. Nov. 27, 1750, the year that the old mansion was partly burnt, he m. Mary Clark, b. Aug. 19, 1728, dau. of Benj. and Miriam (Kilby) Clark,* not originally of Boston, but perhaps(?) from England. For 11 years afterwards they lived in the same house with his uncle, and for 8 of these, the young wife enjoyed the society of Madam Joanna (Dodd-Richards) Cutler. This introduced them to persons of rank, and the old mansion continued to be the resort of persons of the first respectability down to the present century. Mr. Cutler's name appears as a leading member of social and charitable institutions. He was distinguished for his music, and in advanced life played the organ at Trinity Church, where his son-in-law was Rector. Aug. 22, 1804, aged and infirm, he made his will, giving his gold watch to his son Benj. Clark Cutler, $100 to Elizabeth Winter, for her services in his family, ordering the sale of his real estate by his executors, and $3,000 of the proceeds to be invested in stocks, the income from which should be semi-annually paid to his sister, Ann Cutler, for her maintenance through life, and then be divided to his heirs and their representatives, in the proportion in which he bequeathed the residue of his estate, viz., five-eighth parts to Benj. C., Eliz'th Prince, Anne Parker, Sarah Dunn, and Jane Doane, then living; one-eighth to Maria and Joseph Foster, children of his dau. Miriam; one-eighth to Benj. C., in addition, and to Job Prince, son of deceased dau. Rebecca; one-eighth to Mary Ann, Sarah Dunn, and Harriet Henrietta, children of his son James. He appointed Benj. C. Cutler, Samuel Dunn, and Joseph Foster, Exec'rs. Will proved Nov. 11, 1805. His estate inventoried by Sam'l Clapp, Azer. G. Archbald, and Edmund Quincy, at $16,053.89, of which the ancient house and land in Marlboro' st., was appraised at $15,000.

His wife Mary, May 13, 1800, was buried at King's Chapel, aged 73; and he at Trinity Church, Oct. 31, 1805, aged 82. Had—

75. 144. Mary Ann Cutler,[5] m. Jan. 16, 1815, Hon. Wm. Appleton, late member of Congress from Suff. Dis., b. Nov. 16, 1786, d. Feb. 15, 1862, the son of Rev. Joseph and Mary Hook, (b. 1756, d. 1842) Appleton of North Brookfield, and gr'dson of Isaac A. of Ipswich, (b. 1704, d. 1794,) by his wife Elizabeth Sawyer, (b. 1710, d. 1785,) and gr. grdson of Maj. Isaac A. of Ips. (b. 1664, d. 1747,) by his wife Priscilla Baker, (grd-dau. of Lt. Gov. Symonds, who m. a dau. of Gov. Winthrop,) and gr. gr. grdson of Samuel A. of Ips. (b. 1624, at Waldingfield, Eng.,) by his wife Mary Oliver, and gr. gr. gr. grdson of Sam. Appleton, (b. 1586, at Little Waldingfield, Co. of Suff., Eng.,) who settled at Ips., Mass., took the Freeman's Oath, 1636, and represented Ips. in the G. Court, 1637.

Mrs. Mary Ann (Cutler) Appleton "was a lady whose education, rank and Christian graces made her an ornament to society, and for 45 years the solace of her husband. Few, if any, were happier in their domestic relations, and, in the full sunshine of prosperity, they passed their lives in the refined circle of elegance and taste. She was ever the friend to the poor, and truly a mother in Israel, leading her children to the Cross. She was much beloved, and d. March 29, 1861, deeply lamented." Of her husband, in what terms of reverence and gratitude would I speak, did his relation to the race call for more than his lineage. I cannot, however, in presenting this, refrain from urging all who would profit by examples of human excellence, escape the condemnation of living to themselves, and glorify God in life, death and forever, prayerfully to peruse a discourse on the occasion of his death by Rev. Elijah Wells, D. D., also a memoir of him by Rev. Chandler Robbins, D. D., prepared agreeably to a resolution of the Mass. His. Society, and another equally endorsed by the New Eng. His. Gen. Society, by John H. Sheppard, Esq., pub. in Vol. XVII., pp. 293–304 of the Gen. Reg. These just tributes, with the workings of institutions, aided and endowed by $500,000 of his honorable accumulations, will preserve the fragrance of his memory to other ages, while a volume devoted to his life, would, it is believed, be a valuable acquisition to merchants, financiers, and political economists. CHAPT. II.

P. 3. II. John Cutler, sen., of Hingham, Mass., was originally from Sprowston, now Sprauston, two miles N. of Norwich, and about eight miles S. of Hingham, in the County of Norfolk, Eng. This is proved from Daniel Cushing's MS. Record of Settlers from Norfolk, as deciphered by Henry A. Whitney, Esq., (Ch. II., 550,) and indorsed by other critics in ancient chirography. He first appears among the persecuted adherents of Rev. Robert Peck, A. M., of Hingham, who "sold their possessions for half their value, and in 1637, [prob. 1633–9] removed with him to New England, and named the place of their settlement after their natal town. (See Bloomfield's Topograph. His. of Norfolk.) He embarked, it is believed, in the Rose of Yarmouth, Wm. Andrews, Jr., master, which sailed on or about April 18, 1637, the year in which D. Cushing, Esq., the town clerk of Hingham, certifies that he arrived. He was at H. by, or a little before, June 10 following, when land was assigned him. He came, attended by his wife Mary, seven children, and one servant, and settled at H., with his beloved and independent minister and brethren, and died there," Feb., 1637–8, ere time was allowed him to make any further mark. The circumstances of his removal, and the character of his companions, indicate a man thoroughly imbued with the doctrines and spirit of the Puritans. In 1637 the proprietors of Hingham assigned him a home lot of five acres on the S. side of the town street; two planting lots of six and seven acres, bounded on one side by the "World's Ends;" and 20 acres on the Plain for a great lot. June 10, 1637, they gave him 1½ acres of salt marsh in Weymouth meadow, and two lots of one and two acres of fresh meadow, total 42½ acres, a common amount to commence upon. No more lands in Hingham were assigned him or his heirs. His early death must have arrested his improvements, and subjected his widow, with seven children, and the youngest but two years old, to great privations and hardships. The sons are presumed, from circumstances, to have been taken under the care of Dea. Robert Cutler of Charlestown, and their mother, after a widowhood of about 12 years, m. for a 2d husband, Thomas Hewet of H., whose 1st wife d. May 22, 1649. He d. May 24, 1670. What disposition was made of most of her first husband's lots does not appear; but, Feb. 14, 1671, her son Samuel, then of Topsfield, was constituted attorney for his "brothers and sisters, the Cutlers," and joined with their mother, wid. Mary Hewet, Feb. 17, 1671, in conveying to Wm. Hersey the home lot of five acres, to John Feringe, the 1½ acre of salt marsh, land "given to his father John Cutler, her former husband, by the town of H." This power of attorney was subscribed by Nathaniel Cutler of Reading, Thomas Cutler of Charlestown, Onesiferus Marsh, for himself and wife; and again, before distinct witnesses, Marsh signed for John Cutler, then insane, under the guardianship of the selectmen of Woburn. (See Suff. Rec., vol. 7, p. 313, vol. 18, p. 12, and vol. 20, p. 12.) Had—

2. 6. John[2] became an early proprietor of Reading, where, in 1667, he drew 30 acres, but settled at Wood Hill in Woburn, now Burlington, and was first taxed as an inhabitant of W., Dec. 22, 1646. He m. Sept. 3, 1650, Olive Thompson, dau. of James T., one of the selectmen of W., in 1644; and, 2d, Mary, dau. of Abraham Brown of Watertown, who had been wife of John Lewis of Charlestown and Malden, 1650–57, whom he survived until 1678, when he d. with the smallpox. April 3, 1666, the County Court, in consequence of his insanity, placed him under the guardianship of the selectmen of Woburn, and instructed them to dispose of his property "so as to be for his benefit and that of his children, and for paiment of that Ingaigement he made to his late wife, the relict of John Lewis." In 1678, a suit, brought by him against his trustees, was decided against him, and a judgment rendered for the town, amounting to £90, in satisfaction of the expense they had been at for his maintenance for 13 years previous. Whereupon all his lands were attached, and came into the possession of the town. But the selectmen agreed that all should be given up by deed to his son, he paying £3 annually, until he had paid at the rate of 40s. per acre for a certain part, and the rest he should have gratis. He seems to have complied, and the family for generations remained in that part of Woburn, now Burlington. Had—

115. 134. Ebenezer,[4] m. April 27, 1726, Abigail Felch of Reading, resided in several towns, probably without changing much, or at all, his location. He lived "nigh to Grafton, and worshipped there," and Nov. 29, 1741, signed a petition to the Gen. Court, to be set off from Shrewsbury to Grafton, and that a point of Sutton, 2½ miles from Grafton meeting-house, and 8 miles from Sutton, situated between Shrews. and Grafton, be added to Grafton, and the petition, Jan. 7, 1741–2, was granted. In 1729 and 1745 he was of Sutton, where he sold, for £66, 44 acres to D. Harwood, and two acres to Jona. King. In 1736 and 1746, he was of Shrewsbury, when he sold land in S. and in Hardwick. He was afterwards of Grafton, where, Feb. 2, 1779, he made his will, giving to his wife Abigail, and dau. Abigail, his in-door moveables, the occupancy for life of half his house, consisting of three lower rooms, a chamber, garret and cellar, and to this dau. £300, to be paid within one year after his decease, binding his sons Ebenezer and Moses to pay this legacy, and provide for them while they lived. To his son Jonathan he bequeathed £20, with what he had already given him by deed; and to David £150, and to Ebenezer and Moses the remainder of his estate, in equal shares. 104. 168. Isaac,[3] Capt., whose name tradition has confounded with John, is presumed to have been the eldest son of Samuel (No. 101) from his drawing Samuel (No. 105) from Salem to Killingly, to settle on lands adjoining, and near him in Killingly. He located about 1712–14, one mile W. of Rhode Island line, on the N. side of the Old Road from Providence to Hartford, and 15 rods E. of the present dwelling of Mrs. Matilda, wid. of Samuel Reynolds. He then owned an extensive tract of "College lands," as they were perhaps the 2000 acres which the Gen. Court of Massachusetts, in 1657, granted in the East part of Connecticut, to Har. Col., from which "no benefit was derived," the grant having probably been ignored, or on lands at a later date given to Yale Col., including a tract of the richest interval on Five Mile River. Josiah Wolcott of Salem, one of the purchasers of Killingly from Connecticut, 1709, sold lands in K. soon after to Jacob Spading of S. and probably to Isaac and Samuel Cutler. The part taken by Isaac was spacious enough to enable him to furnish six of his seven sons with ample farms, and locate them within sound of his horn. He was b. 1684, covenanted, July 22, 1716, and "d. June 8, 1758, agd 74, a useful man in his day. All you must die, as well as I." (G. S.) He m. Sarah ———, who d. his wid., June, 1763, agd 75. Had—

Sheffield, Jr., of Hol., 95 acres, bounded then S. by Alexander Lovell's [soon Henry Morse's] land; W. and N. and partly E. by Edmund Morse's, and E. by Sam'l Corning's, [soon David Wheaton's] land. This was the W. half of the N. W. corner lot of Med., previously Medfield, and included one acre adjacent, in Hol., on which S. had erected a house, and made other improvements. This was the W. part of a lot of 147 acres, which, in 1659, had been assigned to Rev. John Wilson of Medfield, who left it to his son-in-law, Rev. Grendall Rawson of Mendon, who, with his wife Susanna (Wilson) for £30, May 2, 1707, sold it to Wm. Sheffield, senior, of Sherborn. It was bounded W. and N. by Sherborn lines, E. by Winthrop's Pond, S. by the lot assigned to John Frary, Jr. Wm. Sheffield, sen., left the W. part to his son, Wm., Jr., the E. part to Edmund Morse of Mendon, his son-in-law, who probably sold the N. E. part to Henry Morse, and the S. E. to Samuel Corning, who probably sold it to David Wheaton of Mendon, by whom it was first improved. Winnekeening Cemetary in Hol. is chiefly on the N. E. part. He lived about ¼ mile N. W. of Morse Cutler's Nursery, and W. of the deep cut on the Milford Branch Railroad. He was distinguished for his industrious, diligent and systematic pursuit of business, for his regular attendance on family and public worship, for his efforts to impart to his children the elements of a common school education, and imbue their minds with the doctrines and spirit of the gospel. He was m. by Rev. Nathan Buckman of Med., April 9, 1733, to Abigail Clark, supposed to have been the dau. of his step-father, Theophilus C. She m. for a second husband, 1762, Dea. Theo. CHAPT. III.

P. 3. III. Robert Cutler, Dea., was of Charlestown as early as 1636, for Oct. 28, of that year, the General Court ordered that "For Robert Cutler, in regard of his lameness, charge and weak estate by reason of his long sickness, the deacons of Charlestown were wished to see him and afford such help as is needful and bring in their bills, and the treasurer to pay the same." Fortune afterwards smiled upon him, and he became one of the most distinguished citizens of Charlestown, and gave a son a liberal education. He was admitted to the Church in Charlestown, 1637, and May 2, 1638, to the freeman's oath; was Deacon of the Church, 1659, held sundry important civil offices, and died March 7, 1665. He made his will the day preceding his death, distributing a good estate to his wife Rebecca, four children and several grandchildren, beside making bequests to the Deacons of the Church. July 25, 1676, she made her will, bequeathing property inventoried at £685:18s. to sons John and Nathaniel, dau. Rebecca Arrington, son-in-law Matthew Griffine, granddau. Sarah Griffine, daus.-in-law, Martha, the wife of her son John, and Elizabeth, the wife of her son Nathaniel; and made the latter sole executor. She owned an old house in Charlestown, valued at £110, and a new house next the ferry, at £160; one cow's common, and wood and hay lots, at £33. John had previously received lands, and Nathaniel had the homestead. They had—

2. 6. John,[2] Deacon and Capt., r. a blacksmith in Charlestown, was Deacon, 1673. He has commonly been taken for the Capt. C. who served in Philip's war, and while convoying, with a small company, some carts from Marlborough to Sudbury, narrowly escaped the enemy, April 22, 1676, when Capt. Wadsworth was cut off. But considering his age, and that he drew no pay for services in that war, this probably refers to Capt. Ephraim C., afterwards of Brookfield. [See names not traced, Ch. IV.] In 1681 he joined the artillery company, and in 1680 and 1682, represented Charlestown in the General Court. He m. Ann Woodmansey, dau. of Robert and Anna W., who d. Aug. 30, 1683, aged 56, and 2d, Oct. 29, 1684, Mehetabel (Nowell) Hilton, dau. of the distinguished Increase N. and the widow of Wm. H., who died a widow, Sept. 29, 1711, aged 74. Dea. C. made his will, Aug. 20, 1692, giving to her the homestead which "was hers before marriage," to his son John, 30 acres and dirty marsh; to son Timothy, an estate which after his decease should descend to his son Robert; to Dorothy, the widow of his son Samuel, the continued occupancy of a house which, after her death, should go to her sons Samuel and Abraham; to dau. Mary Cutler, £20. The residue of his estate he gave in equal shares to his five surviving children, and to the heirs of his dau. Hannah Willard, and made his sons John and Timothy executors. He had—

23. 39. Timothy, Rev. Dr., the most eminent clergyman of his time in the Episcopal Churches of this country, was baptized in the Congregational Church in Charlestown, June 1, 1684, grad. at Harvard College, 1701, received a member of the Church in Charlestown, 1705, ordained pastor of the Church in Stratford, Ct., January 11, 1709, preached the Election Sermon at New Haven, 1717, and was chosen president of Yale College, 1719. This station he filled for two years with great honor to himself, and satisfaction to the friends of the Institution, being the most popular preacher in New England. He was, says President Stiles, a man of strong powers of mind; spoke Latin with great fluency and dignity; and was one of the best oriental scholars ever educated in this country. He had more knowledge of the Arabic than any man before him except President Chauncy and his disciple, Mr. Thatcher. He was also well skilled in logic, metaphysics, moral philosophy, Theology and Ecclesiastical history. While acting as President he began to question the validity of Congregational Ordination, and succeeded in shaking the confidence of quite a number of his brethren. Early in 1722 a public debate between him and the dissenters was agreed upon, when, as he might naturally have inferred from his position, learning and eloquence, he would carry all before him, and secure the College to Episcopalianism forever. But he reckoned without his host. The wavering were confirmed, and all but himself, tutor Brown and another candidate for orders, retired from the debate, convinced that if St. Peter ordained a successor at Rome, of which there is no proof, the succession has three or more times been interrupted; and that, if necessary to the validity of ordination, then the Congregational ministers of this country have it in common with the Episcopal, being the descendants of Wilson, Cotton and Mather, who were ordained by the Bishops of Chester and Chichester; and though ordaining power was not supposed to have been conferred, yet they received as much right to claim and exercise it as the Bishops of England had in the time of Henry VIII. to consecrate other Bishops; for they had received at their own ordination no such power from the Pope, nor was it supposed to have been conferred. If the power depended on intention it was then lost; and for three centuries the English Bishops had possessed no more right to ordain than they gave to Wilson, Cotton or Mather. And further, the hearers of the debate must have seen that as God endowed men with power to originate a state, by adopting a social compact, enacting laws and appointing magistrates, who, when chosen, were "the ministers of God," "a terror to evil doers," whom to resist would be to "resist the ordinance of God;" so, when He brought together companies of believers, in need of Christian covenants and ordinances, He, by his Providence appointing their circumstances, gave them power to enter into covenant, choose just and devout men to be their pastors and teachers, and empower Councils, Committees, or Presbyteries, to set them apart; and that when thus consecrated they were, as far as human means could go, "ministers of Christ," "embassadors of God." The people had received a succession of such embassadors, and witnessed the seal of God on their fruitful ministry; and they were satisfied and spurned specious reasons to return to that Church from whose oppressions their fathers had lately fled. Dr. Cutler was destined to another mortifying disappointment. The Trustees of the College immediately after voted to "excuse him from all further services as Rector." He then came to Boston, where a new Episcopal Church was offered him, and Nov. 5, 1722, embarked for England, was ordained priest and deacon in March following, received D. D. from Oxford University, and July 26, 1723, sailed for Boston, where he was instituted Rector of Christ's Church and sustained that relation until Aug. 17, 1765, when he died, aged 82. He was no doubt ambitious to propagate Episcopalianism; and was accused by President John Adams of having been given to intrigue. After his settlement in Boston he united with Mr. Myles, Rector of King's Chapel, in demanding the right, ex officio, to a seat in the Board of Overseers of Harvard College, maintaining that they were included in the intent and meaning of the act of 1642. The demand was treated with great courtesy, and answered with consummate ability, showing the hollowness of their claim, and their petition to the General Court was negatived Dec. 28, 1727. He preached above 40 years in Christ's Church to an audience averaging about 500 souls, then a small congregation for Boston and a man of his learning and oratory, and composed, as names indicate, mostly of new comers. What monuments of happy success he left, cannot now be ascertained, as his people were dispersed by the Revolution and very few ever returned. He must have often officiated in the Church at Cambridge, and had admirers in the College. He probably prepared candidates for orders. No man of his learning, in New England, ever published so little. Nothing, but his election sermon in 1717, and funeral sermon on the death of Tho. Graves in 1757, is reported. The silence of the press shows that after his refutation at New Haven, he never attempted to break lances with the advocates of Congregational ordination. Episcopalianism, however, flourished in his day, and he must have had an agency in gathering congregations of that order in most of our principal towns, and several in the country. He maintained a correspondence with Archbishop Secker, and in a letter to him of Aug. 28, 1754, speaks of his only son, then Curate to Rev. Mr. Dean of Bocking, in Essex County. (See Boston News Letter, for September 6, 1739.)

Dr. Cutler must have known the origin of his family. He was 10½ years old at the death of his grandfather (aged 66) who was born in England, and 7 years out of College at the death of his father (aged 58); and it is incredible that he did not learn through them the original seat of the family in England; and when there, like Dr. Franklin, visit the place, and perhaps revive traditions of the persecution which exiled his ancestor and brothers; for it lingered among the Cutlers of Norfolk as late as 1774. [See Chap. IV., No. 186.] From him Dr. Samuel Cutler of Ch. IV., No. 88, while at Harvard College, probably imbibed his Episcopalianism, learned that Norfolk County was the birthplace of three emigrant Cutlers, and Yarmouth the port of their embarkation, but not the name of either, except Robert, the great grandfather of Rev. Dr. Cutler, the names of the others having, in 100 years, been forgotten. If so, it explains Dr. Samuel's ignorance of the names of the others, and of Hingham and Watertown as the places of their settlement, while he gives Charlestown correctly as the location of Robert.

CHAPT. IV.

P. 3. IV. James[1] was probably at Watertown as early as 1634, where, according to tradition, he m. Anna ——, sister of Capt. John Grout's wife, who together were so reproached and tantalized in England for their Puritanism, that they resolved to seek their fortunes in New England, and came unattended by parents, husbands or lovers. His first child was born early in November, 1635, and he had that year passed all necessary probation, been received an inhabitant of Watertown, and had a home lot assigned him. It consisted of 8 acres, bounded E. by Tho. Boylston, W. and N. by a highway, i. e. by Common Street and Pond Road, S. by Ellis Barron, and situated in the N. part of Watertown, on the road to Belmont. In the first "great dividend," July 25, 1636, he was assigned 25 acres and 3 acres in the further plain (now Waltham plain) next the river. In 1642, from the farm lands, he had assigned him 82 acres in the 4th division, and 4 other lots. October 2, 1645, he was one of the petitioners "in relation to Nashaway plantation, now Weston." December 13, 1649, James Cutler and Nathaniel Bowman, for £70, bought of Edward Goff 200 acres in Cambridge, adjoining Rock meadow, and near or adjoining to W., now Waltham line, payable in instalments of £10 annually, in goods, and payment secured by mortgage. It was bounded E. by the land of N. Biscoe. March 4, 1651, he sold his share (100 acres) to Bowman, for £39. "It is probable that about this time he settled in Cambridge Farms (Lexington) near Concord line, now Bedford, and the farm has been in the family until recently, and part of it is still owned by the widow of John and heirs of Leonard Cutler. He is supposed to have built one of the first houses in Cambridge Farms, the door steps and cellar hole of which are now to be seen." He buried his first wife, Anna, September 30, 1644, and married, second, March 9, 1645, Mary King, widow of Tho. King of W., who died, and he married, third, about 1662, Phebe Page, dau. of John Page. His residence was too remote in W., and especially in Cambridge, to have admitted of his serving either in town offices. He made his will, November 24, 1684, at Cambridge Farms, being then aged 78, and died May 17, 1694, aged 88. In his will he bequeathed to children, James, Tho. and John Cutler, to John Collar, the husband of his dau. Mary; to Sarah (King) Parks, his step-daughter, wife of Richard P.; to John Parmenter's wife, Sarah Waite, Mary (King) Johnson, his step-daughter; to Hannah Winter, Joanna Russell, (wife of Phillip R.) and to Jemima, Samuel and Phebe Cutler, and made sons John and Tho. executors. Will proved Aug. 20, 1694. Had—

41. 101. Uriah,[4] about 1740, settled in Morristown, N. J., built his house on high ground, 2 miles N. E. of the Court House, having an extensive prospect south, and his farm on the southern declivity of a long hill. Here he received a visit, July 16, 1787, from his nephew, Rev. Manasseh Cutler of Hamilton, Mass., from whose Journal is the following extract:

"I made a visit to an uncle Uriah Cutler, the only [surviving] brother of my father. I had never seen him, nor had he seen my father, for nearly 50 years. The old gent. was overjoyed when I told him who I was, and bid me a most hearty welcome. I was much pleased with his situation and circumstances. He has a very pretty farm and decent house. His land is excellent—large orchards of apple-trees, peach-trees, and every kind of fruit propagated in this part of the country. He lives as well as a farmer can wish, and with very little labor. Here I found a large pair of oxen, which he assured me was the only pair in the town. He has also a pretty dairy of cows, having retained the ideas of propagating neat cattle, which he brought from New England. But he had partly gone into the style of the Jersey farmers, for he has five fine horses. My uncle is the youngest of the family, and 74 years of age, but uncommonly sprightly and active for that period of life. Like my father he has but one [surviving] son, Jesse, which has been much of a family name in the lateral branches.* He lives in one part of the house, and has married a wife who bids fair to be a fruitful vine, for she has had three children in four years. This son is the only surviving child of eight. He has had other sons, Abijah, David, and Jonathan, one of whom has left a widow and two children. My uncle lives with a second wife, to whom he has been married fifteen years, but has had no children since their union. He seems to be very happy in the connexion his son has formed, which he often mentioned with particular satisfaction. His son's wife appeared to be a very agreeable woman, and was descended from a good family. We spent the afternoon in viewing his farm, barns, orchards, &c. I was particularly pleased to find that, as a farmer, he was very neat, his lands in fine order, well fenced, and his lots judiciously disposed. He was now sowing his buckwheat, which he said was a profitable grain, and insisted on my taking some to make the experiment in Massachusetts. As I had to go on my journey the next morning, which he at first absolutely forbid, he insisted that we should make a long evening, and we did not retire until after one o'clock. July 17, when I proposed setting out, I found my uncle's passions much agitated, and it was with pain I assured him I must go, promising, if ever again in that part of the country, to call, and if possible, spend more time."

88. 170. Samuel,[4] M. D., after leaving college, travelled in Europe, attended medical lectures at Edinburgh, and became a member of the faculty of Edinburgh Hospital. After his return to New England he did not sympathize with the Whigs, on which account he retired, in 1776, within the British lines at Newton, L. I., where he resided during the conflict, greatly esteemed for his learning and benevolence, which acquired for him a considerable practice. [See Ricker's History of Newton.] After the war he m. Jennette Cauldwell, dau. of Capt. James C. of Hartford, Ct., settled in Rockingham, Vt., where he d. 1821.

Dr. Cutler, while a member of Harvard College, must have often had opportunity to hear the eminent Dr. Timothy Cutler preach in the Episcopal Church in Cambridge, and is supposed to have then embraced Episcopalianism, and made his acquaintance. From him he would naturally have sought counsel preparatory to prosecuting his studies in Europe; and probably have gained knowledge of Norfolk County, as the original home of their ancestors, and of Yarmouth, as the place of their embarkation, not found in any record in England. [See Chapt. III., No. 39.] These he is supposed to have entered in his Journal, still preserved, with what he incidentally heard in England of the family of Sir Gervase; adopting as theory, to be tested by investigations he never made, that he had descended from one of his sons, said to have come to America. This it is believed was all he ever did; being in pursuit of science, having neither funds, time, or knowledge of records to trace ancestors. From such an entry, with the name of only one emigrant given correctly, without dates of births, marriages or deaths, is he falsely reported to have traced the race from Sir Gervase, while the error and meagreness of the extract is evidence that he did no such thing; and the silence of his children, yet living, in reporting his family, confirms it. Vanity, stronger than sense and conscience united, may continue to propagate the falsehood, but Dr. Cutler's high character is not answerable. Had—

187. 385. Ephraim,[6] Hon., named for his only paternal uncle, who was killed a few months before his birth, was, at the solicitation of his lonely grandfather, Hezekiah, committed to his care, at the age of three years, and remained with him until his death, in 1792, who then made him sole legatee of his real estate.

His opportunities for early education were limited to District Schools, as they then were, and the instructions of Rev. Elisha Atkins of Killingly, with whom he studied mathematics and surveying. These created a demand for his services in surveying lands in the Territory North-west of the Ohio, in the purchase of which he "invested all his property." He was successful in the draft of some of his lands, and he gave 100 acres to Lt. G. Ewing, father of Hon. Tho. Ewing, and do. to Capt. Benj. Brown, an officer of the revolution, to accompany him and settle upon them. June 15, 1795, he left Killingly for Marietta, reached Monongahela River, with his wife and four children, two of which they buried, while descending in a flat-boat to M., where he arrived September 18th, thus performing a journey in three months, which he lived to see accomplished in thirty-six hours. Soon after his arrival he was unexpectedly appointed by Gov. St. Clair, Captain of Militia, Justice of Peace, and Judge of C. C. Pleas. The latter office required him to travel 40 miles, four times in a year, to attend court, through an unsettled country, and for one night, at least, on the way, to spancel his horse, and lay down in the woods.

In 1800, 1 and 2, he was elected a member of the Territorial Legislature, and, in 1802, a member of the Convention to form the Constitution of Ohio; and to him belongs the immortal honor of introducing the section which excluded slavery from that state, and consequently from all the states afterwards formed north-west of the Ohio. (See Burnet's History of North-western Ter., p. 353.)

About this time he was chosen Brigadier-General by the military officers of Washington and Belmont Counties, by a majority of five votes against J. Tupper, his democratic opponent, yet the Governor, true to the policy of the prince of demagogism, and the principles of his party, commissioned Tupper in his stead.

In 1818 he was chosen a member of the House, and, in 1822, of the Senate of Ohio; and, during the six years he was a member of her Legislature, he prepared a law to improve the system of common schools, and another law to establish an ad valorem system of taxation, which proved the foundation of the state's credit on which she built her canals. In 1820 he was appointed a Trustee of Ohio University; in 1839 represented his Congressional District in the Convention at Harrisburg, Pa., which nominated Gen. William H. Harrison for the Presidency. He was long an elder in the Presbyterian Church, a member of her General Assembly at Pittsburg, 1835, and at Philadelphia, 1837, when the division took place into Old and New School Assemblies, he adhering to the latter. Judge Cutler settled first at Waterford, now in Athens County, but in 1806 removed to Warren, six miles below Marietta, on Ohio River, where he died July 8, 1853, aged 86.

297. 440*a*. Andrew, A. M., prepared for College at an Academy near his father's in Plainfield, and graduated, in 1823, at Hamilton College, with fair claims to genius and scholarship, and the prospects which they afford. But a sad change came over him. He contracted a sudden cold, followed by severe sickness, and the irrecoverable loss of the partial use of his left hand and right leg. Yet, nearly helpless as he was, he determined that his life should not be a blank. He opened a private school in Plainfield, and taught in neighboring towns, and, after the death of his father, he took possession of the ancient Cutler homestead, and for eight years longer received scholars. During this time Mr. Cutler studied and introduced improvements in school-books and methods of instruction, encountering of course no little opposition which he found no occasion to respect. His school-book was well received by other good scholars and used. He also prepared a Treatise on Moral Philosophy, not yet published. But the progress of anti-slavery sentiments is removing the discouragement, and it is hoped that it may erelong appear, and his name be enrolled among the reformers of his age.

Potomac. Besides skirmishes, he participated in the following battles:—

1. Rappahannock, August 21 to 23, 1862.
2. Gainesville, August 28, 1862, where the Brigade lost 800 men in one hour.
3. Second Bull Run, August 29 and 30, 1862.
4. South Mountain, September 14, 1862.
5. Antietam, Sept. 16 and 17, 1862. His regiment went into this battle with 286 men, and had 152 killed and wounded.
6. Fredericksburg, December 13, 1862.
7. Fitz Hugh's Crossing, April 29, 1863. Here his regiment crossed the Rappahannock on pontoons, in the face of the enemy, charged up a precipitous bank, and captured the rebels' rifle pits and 200 prisoners.
8. Chancellorsville, May 3, 1863.
9. Before Gettysburg, July 1, 1863.
10. Gettysburg, July 2 and 3, 1863. At Gettysburg the Sixth Wisconsin lost 200 men out of 450 engaged. Col. Dawes, then Lieut.-Col., was in command of the Regiment, and received the surrender of the officers, men, and battle-flag of the Second Mississippi Infantry.
11. Mine Run, November 25, 1863.
12. Wilderness, May 5 and 6, 1864.
13. Todd's Tavern, May 8, 10 and 12, 1864.

18. Petersburg, June 18, 1864.
19. Siege of Petersburg.
20. Mine explosion, July 30, 1864.

In the campaign, from the Rapidan to Petersburg, in May and June, 1864, the Sixth Wisconsin Regiment, commanded by Colonel Dawes, lost 60 per cent. in killed and wounded. He was with them in every fight, yet never received the slightest wound or was in hospital on account of sickness, during the three years and four months of his service. He was honorably discharged in Aug. 1864.

496. VI. Ephraim Cutler Dawes,[8] b. May 27, 1840. Grad. at Marietta College, June 26, 1861. Mustered into service as 1st Lieutenant and Adjutant of the 53d Regiment, O. V. I., Sept. 26, 1861; promoted Major, Jan. 26, 1863. Served under Sherman in his Mississippi campaign, in his march from Big Black to Chattanooga, and in the pursuit of Longstreet across the mountains of East Tennessee, in Nov. and Dec., 1863, without baggage or tents, and subsisting on less than half rations. He participated in Sherman's Georgia campaign; had his horse shot under him at the battle of Resaca; and at Dallas, Ga., May 28, 1864, he received two wounds, one in the head, and a second, very severe, in the face—a minnie ball carrying away most of the lower jaw. Major Dawes was honorably discharged from service, on account of his wound, October 31, 1864. He was engaged in the following battles:—

1. Pittsburg Landing (Shiloh) Tenn., April 6 and 7, 1862.
2. Fallen Timbers, Tenn., April 8, 1862.
3. Siege of Corinth, Tenn, and Mississippi, May, 1862.

391. 497. William Parker Cutler,[7] Hon., was educated at the Ohio University, m. Nov. 1, 1849, Elizabeth Williamson Voris, daughter of Dr. William and Elizabeth W. (Means) Voris of Adams County, Ohio, and granddaughter of Col. John Means, who, "believing slavery to be a moral and political evil," removed from South Carolina, in 1819, to Ohio, bringing his slaves with him, and setting them free. W. P. Cutler was elected by the Whigs, in 1844, a member of the Ohio Legislature, and twice reëlected, and in 1846 was chosen Speaker of the House, and during the time he occupied that position no appeal was made from his decisions.

Since 1849 he has been much engaged in promoting the construction and completion of the Marietta and Cincinnati Railroad, a work of great magnitude, and has been several years President of the Company. In 1850 he was a member of the Convention which formed the present Constitution of Ohio. He was a member of the N. S. Presbyterian General Assembly which met at Cleveland, Ohio, in May, 1857, and took a prominent part in the Anti-Slavery debates in that body. In October, 1860, the Republicans elected him a member of the Thirty-Seventh Congress. Resides Warren, six miles from Marietta. Had—
